ALEXANDRA

* Being host with all of her heart and soul and takes care of the families at the Stegerhof with dedication. In practicing yoga, she finds balance.

MARTIN

*Always has a glance at the happenings around the Stegerhof. He finds tranquility at the golf course.

The Stegerhof has been a family-run business for generations. How important are the roots of this house for you personally?

Alexandra: For us it is a matter of the heart to run the hotel in the third generation. I grew up with the lead of my parents to be courageous and open and to precede with good and sustainable ideas. Those roots I feel very strongly, and I have the impression that many of our long-standing guest families appreciate those roots and the accompanying comfort as well. This down-to-earthiness, paired with open mindfulness for the new, we would like to pass on to both our daughters.

Why does the Stegerhof put so much emphasis on a “united together”?

Alexandra & Martin: We see the Stegerhof as a place, where people feel incorporated and warmly accepted. This regards us as hosts, as well as our long-standing employees, who already belong to our family. Certainly, as well our guests from children to parents and grandparents – our goal is to create a place to relax, where families can spend time together away from the hectic everyday routine to recharge their batteries. We can only achieve this project together. That is why we put emphasis on personal care of our guests – this interpersonal component is lived at the Stegerhof on all levels and is – we believe – noticeable in the whole house.

At the Stegerhof Families can get a step closer to nature. Why does this matter to you?

Martin: Both of us grew up in close touch with nature, which is why we are aware of all the positive qualities. We would like families who come to our hotel to feel this connection to nature. Not only the atmosphere in the house, on which we put a lot of emphasis, but also the whole activities program in summer and winter are part of our vision. Respectful treatment of our primal nature landscape, by which we are surrounded in Donnersbachwald, is lived at the Stegerhof. As the only Original Kinderhotel in Styria above said is part of our history, philosophy and vision for the future.

What is your biggest joy about being hotelier?

Alexandra: Definitely to work and have interpersonal contact to people. Personally, I desire to radiate honest and warm hospitality. Probably because I have been surrounded by it my whole life. I am touched each time families say goodbye to us and show us their gratitude for the beautiful time they had in our house. Whenever the peace of our house gets conveyed to our guests, I feel incredibly thankful. That is why the path we pursued 30 years ago by joining the Familienhotels Europa as a foundation member is still the right one for us.
